About The Citadel's Midterm General Election Poll

The Citadel Poll surveyed 1,009 registered voters in South Carolina between October 14, 2026 and October 25, 2026. The sample includes survey responses from registered voters in the state invited to take the survey through live-telephone calls and text messages.

The questions asked in the survey covered four broad themes.

- 1) Migration to the state and time of residence, with Q2.
- 2) The Senate election, including candidate preference (Q12), reason for preference, anticipated competitiveness of the campaign (Q14), and the potential impact of a write-in campaign (Q16).
  - a. The survey began after the October 11 debate between three candidates.
  - b. President Donald Trump spoke in Pendleton, SC on Wednesday October 21 during the time of this poll. An interesting time point comparison for the Greenville-Spartanburg-Asheville-Anderson media market is that among 255 responses voters were 5% fewer voters were undecided and 5% more favored Darline Graham after the visit (40% to 45%). Enthusiasm and support for Annie Andrews in the Upstate remained the same before and after the event (37% to 36%).
- 3) The same questions were asked to understand the views of voters in the race for governor.
- 4) Policy debates in the state, specifically: trust in the upcoming election (Q8), attitudes about flock cameras (Q21), state of the SC economy compared to the region (Q22), individual financial stress (D10), and an assessment of how past governors have handled catastrophes, the economy, and listening to people in the state.

Details on Each State Sample

The Citadel Poll surveyed 1,009 registered voters in South Carolina between October 14, 2026 and October 25, 2026. A margin of sampling error of the South Carolina Sample is 3.2%. This accounts for differences in the sample and estimates of the population. The sample includes 890 likely voters (+/- 4.5%). These respondents said they were very likely (9) or certain (10) on a scale of 1 to 10; or they had already voted.

| South Carolina Sample |            |        |
|-----------------------|------------|--------|
|                       | Registered | Likely |
| Total                 | 1,009      | 890    |
| MOSE                  | 4.0        | 4.0    |
| MOE                   | 3.4        | 3.4    |

An individual weight was calculated for each respondent after the interviews were conducted to ensure all responses were representative of the population. The information was based on known registration and participation statistics by gender and age. An additional measure interacted participation by race, as reported by the state, with the education attainment of each racial group as reported by the American Community Survey. Another interaction measure captured the 2024 presidential votes within the designated market area to account for the differential turnout of voters in each area of the state.

Please refer to the methodology statement at poll.citadel.edu for a description of how the data were collected, demographics of the sample, and how weights were calculated. The Citadel is a contributing member to iPoll at the Roper Center at Cornell University, which is where data from the survey is available to the public.
